Dear Hiring Team,

I am a software engineer (C++ developer) with more than 4 years of experience, writing to bring to your knowledge my desire to work in your company as a software engineer, as it is a position that interests me and matches my skills. Currently I am working on a medical device which performs peritoneal dialysis of kidney patients, to diversify my knowledge in software engineering I believe your organization could be an ideal place to work at. Here is how I could contribute:

- I have experience in working on a cross platform desktop application developed in Qt/qml and C++.
- As a developer I have a sound understanding of developing solutions. I have a great passion for enhancing my problem solving and C++ skills.
- An in-depth understanding of modern C++ and STL.
- Great passion for learning and understanding compiler internals, optimization techniques, modern C++ standards, data structure and algorithms.

I consider myself a diligent professional, with solid work ethics, who ensures integrity and transparency of tasks assigned. I would welcome the chance to discuss my suitability further. Please do not hesitate to contact me on usamatayyab9@gmail.com. I trust that you will give my application your careful consideration and I look forward to hearing from you in due course
